Significance of the Campbell Club

The Campbell Club was listed in the National Register of Historic Places on March 28, 1986, as part of a multiple resource nomination to the register, produced by Glenda Thacker, an Emeritus Director of PA:

“The Campbell Club building is a surviving example of the impressive Victorian domestic architecture that once dominated Frederica Street, one of Owensboro's leading residential areas in the late nineteenth century. Most of these late Victorian structures have been replaced by twentieth century commercial buildings. The Campbell Club is an outstanding example of Second Empire architecture and one of the most important late Victorian structures in Owensboro. The elegant home was built by John S. Woolfolk, incorporator of the Peoples' Wharf-Boat and Transfer Company and sold a few years later to C.D. Jackson, one of the wealthiest men in Owensboro. Jackson was a distant relative of President Andrew Jackson and owned considerable land throughout the county. When he died his heirs sold it to a wealthy distiller who kept it only a few years before selling it to attorney J. D. Powers. Powers was an officer of the Peoples' Wharf-Boat and a state legislator. Dr. W. F. Gillim owned it for 31 years and the house is commonly remembered as the Gillim House. It became a boarding house for the upper class in the early 1930s and many of its residents are now leading citizens of the community. In 1959 it was converted to a private dining club, which saved it from being razed and replaced with a commercial building. Frederica St. was once lined with majestic homes from 4th St. to Griffith Avenue. The Gillim House is the only one remaining north of 9th St. and one of three left north of Parrish Avenue.” ■

Architect William Butts Ittner, authority on school design, attended

The front page of the January 17, 1932, Owensboro Messenger-Inquirer announced the program for the January 20 opening of the “beautiful new Longfellow school building.”

The guest of honor was to be William Butts Ittner (1864-1936), whose St. Louis architectural firm designed the $68,425 structure, about $912,000 in 2006 dollars. On June 15, 1931, Key Bros. Construction Co., of Murray, won the contract to build the school.

Ittner studied architecture at Cornell University. In 1985, Carolyn Hewes Toft, wrote in St. Louis Architects: Famous and Not So Famous, Part 4, that Ittner's St. Louis school designs stretched from 1898 to 1915. “In addition to the fifty school buildings in St. Louis, Ittner's firm produced hundreds of school buildings in over 25 other states.

“Other notable buildings by Ittner in St. Louis include the 1916 Missouri Athletic Club (designed with G. F. A. Brueggeman) and the 1921 Scottish Rite Cathedral. In 1922, Ittner lectured at New York University on School Planning and was appointed by the National Education Association to the Committee on Administration of Secondary Education. Ittner was invited by President Herbert Hoover to a White House Conference in 1926, the same year that he was elected Vice President of the St. Louis Plaza Commission.”

Preservation Bits

Peachtree Saves Buildings

Dr. Scott Reader and Larry Peech, owners of Peachtree Galleries have decided to rehabilitate the 1930 building with the blonde brick façade, located at 104-106 W 2nd St, rather than demolish it. It and the 1885 building to the west suffered damage from fire last year. The 1885 building has already been repaired and is open for business. Debris is currently being cleared from behind the scorched blonde façade. In 1982, the 1930 building was listed in the National Register of Historic Places as a contributing element to the Owensboro Historic Commercial District. ■

Owensboro Historic Downtown District expansion approved

The National Register Review Board approved the expanded downtown historic district, which became effective 7/26/2005. The expanded area includes the original 1982 “Main St” district and the Doctors Row district along W 4th St just east of Frederica. There are several overlapping districts in the downtown for which different review processes are applicable. ■

Status Watch for Historic Buildings

Preservation Alliance monitors particular historic buildings to encourage their preservation. As a community, we are not always successful -- the Felix Grimes House was demolished by permit issued 12/27/2005. However, Zazu's, Smith-Werner, Coca-Cola, and others are alive and enlivening downtown.

BATES BUILDING • 1880s • 101 W 2nd St
 Waterfront 101 LLC, an investment group, owns this building. Interest in downtown property is expected to grow as the Riverfront Master Plan is implemented over the next several years. The impressive façades on 2nd and Allen streets make this building a cornerstone of downtown's historic "Main Street" corridor.

SMITH-WERNER • 1880s facade (1860s) • 118-124 W 2nd St
 Daviess County Fiscal Court has owned this building since October 2000, and currently plans to spend $250,000 on renovations to the structure and its historic and distinctive Italianate façade, which is one of the last remaining and most extensive examples of 19th-century pressed-metal technology in the downtown area. Some rear portions of the 1860s structure may be removed to satisfy building codes. A Renaissance Kentucky grant will be applied to the costs.

E 2ND ST ARTS DISTRICT • Early 1900s • 300-400 blk E 2nd St
 Owner Terry Woodward has made significant renovations to several buildings including the Barret-Fisher and Coca-Cola (left). The city and Woodward jointly extended streetscape improvements from J R Miller Blvd to Clay St. The two blocks are now included in the National Register historic district, with several contributing buildings.

ELMER MILLER HOUSE • 1905 • 301 E 5th St
 This very prominent and architecturally elaborate building has been subject to city property maintenance citations for several years. The current owners have been seeking a buyer who is more able to afford the costly rehabilitation that is needed to save this jewel of Old Owensboro. The house has several windows with elaborate beveled glass and a beautiful transom above the French doors on the front porch. For more information, log on to PAupdate.org.

LONGFELLOW SCHOOL • 1931 • 1716 Frederica St
 Owned by Owensboro Public Schools, until recently it was occupied by Western Kentucky University, Owensboro. The OPS board is studying possible expansions to Owensboro High School that could threaten this special building.

OWENSBORO ARMORY • 1947 • 1501 W Parrish Av
 Was listed in the National Register on 9/6/2002. The large, two-story brick building is arranged in a U-shape and is identical to the armory at Ashland except for brick color. Many original features are intact. Changes over the years have not adversely affected the armory's historic integrity. Recent proposals eventually would move the National Guard unit to the airport and expand city recreation here.
